

But $40,000 Hotel Stock Remains To Be Sold

Additions Made to Small Force of Canvassers and Campaign is Resumed—Judge Sharpe Extends Time for First Payment.

Total subscriptions of $110,000, an average of $22,000 a day, secured by less than a dozen canvassers who were also engaged each day in their individual businesses, indicated Saturday night to the local men and women who are interested in procuring the much-needed new hotel in which the famous "Oscar" of the Waldorf-Astoria is to be one of the prominent owners but that several days more will be required to complete the subscription to the $130,000 stock which is to be taken by Ulster county.

The $110,000 stock for which subscription lists have been actually signed is distributed among 150 men and women, which indicates clearly that only a small proportion of the population of Kingston city have been approached by those who are interested in the new hotel, while not more than a dozen out of town residents have had the opportunity of discussing the hotel.

The canvass for subscriptions to the preferred stock, which carries a bonus of one share of common stock for each two shares of preferred stock subscribed, did not begin until Tuesday, June 20, and the actual signing up of average of $22,000 a day for each of the five days in which the canvass has been in progress is a record which has never been equalled by any other proposition that has been put up before the people either of Kingston city or the county of Ulster. This record is all the more remarkable considering that less than a dozen canvassers have at work each of whom is busily engaged in his or her particular business and unable to devote more than spare time to the new hotel.

Because of these facts, the canvass will be continued this week for as long a time may be necessary to procure subscriptions to the balance of the $130,000 which is all that the city and county are asked to subscribe of the total amount needed to furnish Kingston with a hotel which is explained by one of the canvassers who has had active personal business connections with many hotels for a number of years is sure to be recognized, remembered and talked about by every hotel in the United States because of the internationally known "Oscar" direct connection with it. Practically every hotelman in the world already knows that "Oscar" of the Waldorf owns a farm "somewhere up the river from New York," where he spends his week-ends and where he devotes his spare time to the practical study of farming.

Part of the remaining amount to be procured by Kingston and Ulster county was to have been signed up today, one of the canvassers reporting on Saturday night that subscriptions of $2,000 to stock had been promised by individuals who were out of town and could not reach home until today. Similar statements were made by other canvassers and one canvasser promptly guaranteed additional subscriptions of $5,000 in addition to the large amount he had already turned in, both in subscriptions and checks.

Discussion among the canvassers after they had made their reports disclosed the fact that this week's subscriptions will include some that are large and some that will be for modest amounts. The larger the number of stockholders, the larger of course will be the number of men and women who will have a direct personal interest in telling their friends in different parts of the county and state of the advantages of Kingston, and the advertising value of many local friends in the enterprise is an asset which hotel men everywhere recognize. What the successful hotel nowadays needs, it was pointed out, is not only capital but also local friends who are stockholders and co-operation between the stockholders no matter where they may live, whose friendly feeling secured through successful management is the surest way to a continuation of success and reputation.

Judge Severn B. Sharpe, representing the Sharpe heirs, has been so greatly impressed with what Kingston has done that he has consented to postponement for several days of the initial payment of $10,000 on the purchase price of the property, which was to have been made this morning.

Additional canvassers for the sale of the remaining shares of stock will make a welcome addition to the small staff whose success in securing subscriptions to $110,000 and pledges of more has been phenomenal, because each of the staff who have been engaged in the work is compelled to devote at least part of his or her time to their own personal business.

Whether Kingston is to have a new hotel with which the famous "Oscar" name will be indelibly identified will depend on what Kingston and Ulster county will do within the next few days. Plans of the hotel are at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce on Broadway and East O'Reilly street. The details of the plans have been published extensively, but if there is anyone who failed to read them, a telephone message to the Chamber of Commerce (Call 504)

CLASS DAY EXERCISES TONIGHT

Another "Largest Graduating Class" Begins Week of Final Events Before It Says Farewell to Kingston High School—The Graduates.

The Class of 1922, Kingston High School, is the largest ever to be graduated from the Broadway institution at one time, and the class roll numbers 107. Eighteen of the seniors have pursued and completed the classical course, sixty-six have completed the academic course, three have completed the commercial course, the home-making course open to girls was completed by five girls, three completed the technical course, seven have completed the scientific course, three the industrial course, and two the general school course.

This evening in the high school auditorium the Class Day exercises will be held at which exercises there are no reserved seats and the general public may attend. The exercises will start at 8 o'clock, and in addition to the usual program of speakers two other events of equal importance will take place. The first is the presentation of the debating cup by Judge Hasbrouck to the 1922 championship debating team which has gone through its most strenuous season with two unanimous victories to its credit, coached by Mrs. Witter. The members of the team are A. S. Fleming, leader; Carl Schantz, Blair Muller and John S. Tremper, alternate. Then the three year cup for 1922 Central Hudson Valley Championship holders, Kingston High School. The team coached by Hugh C. MacIntyre and Judge Harry E. Schirick has thus wound up a three year cooperation resulting in three consecutive victories. For two years the team has been coached by MacIntyre and Judge Schirick and one year, 1921, the team was coached by Judge Schirick alone. The members of the team are: Lester Caunitz, captain; Ross Vogt, Richard Whiston, Robert Case, Adolph Stumpf, Blair Muller, John Bott, Charles Howard, Joseph A. Hoffman, Earle McLane, Stanley Colvin.

BUSINESS DAY 69 DAY as the Government sees it PREPARED BY RALPH F. COUCH

When Knighthood Was in Flower

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" is the way it reads, but "When Knighthood Will be in Flower" is how the matter still stands with the moving picture people who are reproducing ancient history at Rifton. For the International Film Concert Sunday night it was the expectation to complete the pictures to be taken at the Rifton bridge—converted by the movie people—after innumerable delays on account of bad weather.

However much we may, on the whole, deplore the lack of care for detail in many forms of business and industry today, the movie business has a very genius for perfection of detail.

When the party of which a Freeman reporter was a member arrived at Rifton, the big "daylight" machines were being set in place, and all of the other electric paraphernalia arranged. A flying machine creates a veritable fury of wind. Torrential rain descends in "sheets," from a large device attached to a fire engine which the company brought with them and with great difficulty got into place where it could operate unseen. The "lightning" producer was in readiness.

During the night trees were cut down and made to grow—apparently—in quite different parts of the scene. The scenic artist, and he is an artist indeed, missed not one smallest detail of scenic effect. Many minutes being consumed in the proper arranging of burdock leaves about a fence post, and of vines over another fence post.

As nearly as the writer can recall the story, the final scene, to be enacted was that wherein Brant and Queen Mary, attempting to elope, were driven to lay on the bridge by the benchmen of Henry VIII on the one side and those of the King of France on the other side. Seeing no way of escape, the lovers on their maddened steeds force the horses into the stream and thus attempt to foil their pursuers.

At last, when dawn was streaking the horizon everything seemed set for the thrilling act. Cameras were placed, the entrance to the bridge cleared of spectators and the actors in historic costume came riding up. A brief rehearsal was to precede the picture-taking. Queen Mary and Brant, made their dash for the bridge, when by some fateful circumstance, Queen Mary's horse slipped and fell heavily upon the rider—who by the way was a man—and rushing to his assistance it was found that one "queen" had a broken leg. With the same precision and dispatch as all the rest of the work was done, the injured man was tenderly carried to a waiting high-power auto and hurried to one of the city hospitals.

Another rider was later requisitioned to play the part of the eloping queen, after added precautions had been taken that no further accident might occur.

Again the rehearsal took place and in spite of the high tension of the horses, all seemed going splendidly, so that the order was given for the taking of the picture.

Once more fate seemed to frown upon the elopement. Down dashed queen and lover upon the bridge, only to be driven back by the mounted retainers into the very arms of other horsemen. The dash for the river was made and splendidly did Queen Mary and horse jump into the water below. Alas even spurs could not bring Brant's horse over the bridge wall, which meant still another try at it. But by the time that the dripping queen in sudden if royal raiment had emerged from the stream and the wet and shivering horse had been brought to the starting point and cared for there was so much sunshine in the heavens that all hope of the storm scene was lost for Monday morning.

Hereafter the writer will have an added respect for movie "thrillers" and scenic effects. And it is a pleasure to state that the concern showed the utmost consideration to the party, seeing to it that they had the vantage point of witnessing the work and final picture taking.

BEAUTY FINDS FIT SETTING IN CATSKILLS

STATE FACTORY EARNINGS FLUCTUATE BUT LITTLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, June 26.—The earnings of factory workers in New York state appear to have reached a condition of relative stability after declining steadily for more than a year. According to the statement issued by the industrial commissioner, Henry D. Sager, the average weekly earning in May was $34.59, a slight increase over the April average, but practically the same as the March average. Since last October the fluctuations in the average weekly earning of all workers, covered by reports to the State Department of Labor have been of no great importance, as they have not been cumulative. A reduction one month has usually been followed by an increase the next, so that the average earning in May was almost identical with that of last October.

Trees Cut Down.

Two hundred trees which adorned the streets of the city of Kingston were cut down between the first day of June, 1921, and the first day of June, 1922, as known by the official records.

The woman who pushed her husband into the river was trying to drown her troubles.

Somewhat embarrassed he sidled up to the department store glove counter.

"Miss Green is out," she said, "but we have a Miss White who is very nice, also a Miss Black and Miss Brown, who are very popular this season."

"Yes, pahson," admitted one parishioner sadly, "an I'll be me, Ah's paying fo' mah sins."

"Dickey," said the mother, "when you divided those five caramels with your sister, did you give her three?"

"No, ma. I thought they wouldn't come out even, so I ate one 'fore I began to divide."

The trouble with modern prodigal sons is they do not return with any spirit of humility, but want to be met with a brass band and then taken home in a $10,000 limousine while the crowds cheer.

LINDEN OF WOODSTOCK A BELIEVER IN SIGNS.

But They Should be Smaller and More Aesthetic.

To the Editor of the Kingston Freeman (and also to those it concerns in Woodstock):

At the first mass meeting in Woodstock for the purpose of safeguarding the rights of the people to swim in the Sawkill, I felt somewhat apologetic because of my interfering with the inalienable rights of the people. Any one who knows me or my record in Woodstock knows also that such was not my intention. I was only trying to stop abuses of those rights—and as I could not do it myself, I had to co-operate with Kingston. There are stories being spread now, I am told, by certain people of importance, to the effect that I went down to the Kingston water commissioners and asked them to lease the land in order to stop the swimming in the river. Anyone who wants to know the truth need only inquire of the commissioners.

When one of the speakers at the meeting insisted in the rights and liberties that his forefathers of 1776 fought for—I wish he had also mentioned a few of the regulations, those same forebears imposed on themselves and their sons and daughters. It is a good thing in fighting for one's rights to remember the rights of other people.

I have always believed that the customs or morals of a people are the foundations on which the family, the community and the nation must be built. A good many children are growing up in our village and I am sure you will agree that we want our children to grow up with some respect for the laws and common decencies of life.

At least, we ought to keep the early life of our children as clean and pure as the Kingstonians want to keep their water. God knows, the stream of life gets rather muddy soon enough anyway.

Tin cans, litter of paper from picnic parties and other rubbish, does not add any beauty to the landscape nor is it very sanitary and I think it would be a liberal education in itself if a "cleaning up" move was started occasionally—and instead of tearing down signs, it would be much better of the artists of Woodstock started a campaign for fewer and better signs. There are many of those who derive a living from designing posters and signs and they might in time persuade the Standard Oil and other companies that a smaller and more beautiful sign, in the right place, would do as well. To tear them down or burn them up does not do any good. In a short time they are back again—bigger, bluer or redder than ever before.

But to come back to the question of water, Woodstock itself soon needs to look after its drinking water; also its cesspools, and instead of fighting Kingston it ought to co-operate in all friendliness and in every possible way to solve the problem of a water supply and a sewer system. In 25 years from now, Woodstock will be a suburb of Kingston and New York and its rights will be their rights also.

Yours very sincerely,
CARL ERIC LINDEN.

When Nature's Fountain Threatened to Run Dry

Baby Jim had been one of the round sunny kind of baby, all dimples and perfect health. That was while Molly had had plenty to feed him herself.

Then all of a sudden Molly began to feel weak and tired and her appetite started to go—food no longer appealed to her and she had to force herself to eat. Pretty soon there began to be less and less for the baby, and wee little would feel himself to sleep, still hungry. Jimmy began to lose weight. He didn't like it, and neither did James, Benoit, and he made Molly frantic. She knew there was nothing in the world so good for a baby as his mother's milk. She didn't want to risk hers on uncertain prepared foods, and the more she worried the less appetite she had. So they called in the family doctor and told him their troubles.

He laughed and said: "Don't you worry, Molly. I've fixed up hungry mothers and lost their appetites through anxiety over their new babies, and while they don't need medicine they do need something that will help them climb back to normal—and that is a topic and an appetizer. It builds up the system and stimulates the palate so that everything tastes good. It is just the thing. It doesn't create a habit—it simply causes an effect—normal healthy hunger."

What happened was that the snappy, tangy taste of the hops roused Molly's appetite so that she ate with all her old zest and there was plenty for Jimmie at every feeding. Molly's appetite came back, and the baby's apple cheeks.

The doctor knew—he'd seen this happen time and time again—that young mothers often lose their appetites through anxiety over their new babies, and while they don't need medicine they do need something that will help them climb back to normal—and that is a topic and an appetizer. It builds up the system and stimulates the palate so that everything tastes good. It is just the thing. It doesn't create a habit—it simply causes an effect—normal healthy hunger.

ASLEEP AT WHEEL, CAR SMASHED

A six cylinder Buick sedan car owned by a New York man was side-swiped and badly wrecked Saturday afternoon by a Winton six near the top of the hill at Katrine on the Gaugher road. The Winton six is owned by a man named Bush of Brooklyn. The owner of the Buick, it is said, admitted he was to blame, saying he was asleep and was on the wrong side of the road headed for Kingston and the first he knew of the other car being on the road was after his car was hit and knocked some distance. Both cars were brought to the Broadway garage near Elmendorf street, in this city, where the Winton was repaired so the owner could leave with it Sunday morning but the repairs to the Buick will take some time as one of the rear wheels was completely wrecked, the housing torn loose, the running board and mud guard torn off and the side dented badly.

Once when I was deaf and dumb he shot off a firecracker underneath me.'—American Legion Weekly.

JUNE RECITAL OF MISS RUMANS' PUPILS

Piano Recital Given At Clinton Avenue Church.

The June recital of pupils of Miss Nettle Burhans was given on Saturday afternoon in the Sunday school rooms of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. The program, which follows, was heard by a large group of interested parents and musical friends. The pupils ranged from those young in music to others sufficiently expert to play with understanding from the works of the master-writers of pianoforte music. The elementary pieces were played with good tone, clear technique and sane expression. The more advanced showed fine regard for phrasing and the use of the pedal. Special mention of the steady rhythm of the first three young players is deserved.

Olive Kyer gave "Simple Confession" with beauty of tone. The Godard numbers were played with the brilliance they demand. Scharwenka's "Polish Dance" had the real Slav flavor and the Schubert Impromptu was given in the songful spirit in which it was written. Sinding's familiar "Rustle of Spring" gave Miss Kathleen Meeker opportunity to display fluent arpeggios and musical taste, and Miss Helen Carpenter gave evidence of unusual pianistic gifts. She played the Chopin Nocturne with tenderness, and the brilliance of the valse gave evidence that her natural facility has been expertly developed.

The concluding number, Schubert's "The Trout" is a beautiful transcription. It is especially good to hear for it is so seldom played. The shimmering beauties were sincerely brought out by Miss Messenger for she has a fine tone, quick, sure fingers and a temperament to match the changing moods of the music.

BACCALAUREATE TO K. H. S. 1922

Rev. Dr. Seeley Balthasar, in his sermon on "The Life Worth While," emphasizing the spiritual as well as the material.

Members and friends of the 1922 graduating class of Kingston High School filled the auditorium of the school on Sunday evening in attendance at the baccalaureate service. The sermon to the graduates was delivered by the Rev. Frank B. Seeley, D. D., whose subject was "The Life Worth While." It was an inspiring, forward-looking sermon, giving full cognizance of the absolute need of religion in any life that is worth while, and it was listened to with intense interest by the large audience, as well as by such members of the board of education, faculty and clergy as were present on the platform or in the auditorium. The full program:

Invocation—How Firm a Foundation.
Song—The Rev. W. J. Nelson.
Shades of Night—Harris.
Faculty Double Quartet.
Prayer—The Rev. Dr. Lucas Boeve.
Solo—Pleasant d'Amour.
—Martini-Powell.

Prof. C. R. Spaulding.
Reading—The Rev. R. P. Ingersoll.
Song—The Son of God Goes Forth to War.

Sermon—The Life Worth While...
The Rev. F. B. Seeley.
These O Country—Richberg.
Faculty Double Quartet, Messrs. Carter, Hull, Seigle, Cass, Messrs. Dunbar, Mack, Newton, Lewis.

Solo—All Hail the Power of Jesus Name.
The Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady.
Accompanist, Miss Reynolds.

Dr. Seeley's sermon was as follows:

The custom of a Baccalaureate sermon to a graduating class of students in high school and college, a definite acknowledgment of the universally recognized truth that no boy or girl is or can be truly educated and equipped to take his or her place in life and fulfill his mission, who has not been to school in the university of religion and whose spiritual nature has not had nurture and training.

"Education," says Ruskin, "is the tending of human souls to what is best in them and the making what is best of them." A right conception of the purpose of human life must be possessed in order to know what should be the purpose of education.

It is the dictate of reason, the pre-eminence of the heart, the voice of only of man but of God which tells that the space between the earth and the coffin is but a minute segment of the arch of the soul's existence. All true education, therefore, must aim at the building of the noble manhood and womanhood. It must not only enable a man to earn a living but to make a man, not merely add him to acquire fortune but to safeguard a soul, to merely fit him to shine in a law room but by God's grace to enter the celestial city.

It must therefore fuse into itself the gold of religious truth. It must enforce morality spiritualized by divine revelation. It must hearken to the voice of God and so hearkening, speak in the voice of deepest human experience. It must be founded on and anchored in a firm, strong and loving confidence in God and a sense of personal accountability to him.

As Chappin has well said, "accepted has never founded empires, established principles, or changed the world's heart. The great deeds in history have always been men who have lived well." "Teach," said Seneca, "the art of living well." "Reason and experience both forbid us to expect national morality can prevail exclusion of religious principles," said our own Washington. "Education without religion," said the Duke of Wellington, "and you make men but clever devils." "True religion," said Burke, "is the foundation of society. When that is once shaken by contempt the whole fabric cannot be stable and lasting."

Religion, on the other hand, has ever been the mainspring of intellectual progress. The leaders of the church, from the days of the patriarchs to the present, have been the greatest students of their time. The universities of most ancient lineage in Europe were the children of the Christian church. Salamanca in Spain, Padua in Italy, Oxford and Cambridge in England but represent types of the time-worn devotion of Christianity to learning. John Calvin of Geneva was the very father of the public school system. Harvard, Yale and Princeton, are but typical of the foundation of institutions of learning at the hands of the Christian church. No religion has an up-to-date education as has Christianity.

May I not then, ask your thoughtful attention as I bring to you the words of the world's supreme authority in religion, as they are recorded in Matthew 6:33: "Therefore take no anxious thought, saying, what shall we eat, or what shall we drink, or wherewithal shall we be clothed, but seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

No words in the Bible touch more surely the deep, haunting need of the human heart. Here seems to be someone who understands us. The aspect of human life which impressed Jesus as he watched it, was its restlessness, its wearisomeness, its fretfulness, its lack of peace and calm. He saw men and women hurrying here and there, restless, dissatisfied, bearing heavy burdens of foreboding, heavy loads of regret and care and sin. He saw it in their faces and in their deeds. And he called them to the real life, the life that is really worth while. These words might have been spoken this morning, so true are they to the poignant need of our anxious time, when so many harsh and broken voices murmur through the world.

Human life in its modern phase is every day under terrific strain both from within and from without. Look into the faces of even the youth of our day—faces so often seamed by restlessness and anxious care. Just note the restlessness of the average high school boy or girl. So much to be done and so little time to do it. Our social order has become more and more complex and involved. Everywhere the tension tightens, alike for those who are bound to the wheel of toil and for those who bow down to the great God mammon. In every trade today, business or professional, men have to go at a terrific killing pace to keep up with the procession. Life is tense and the question of how I am going to succeed is yielding to the question of how to succeed and at the same time keep my soul alive. Is it any wonder that the meaning and purpose of life becomes blurred in the scramble for the means of living and the still small voice is drowned in the pell-mell medley of clattering events?

The same spirit is quite evident in modern literature, which reflects the hurried life we are living, giving us only fragments, glimpses of life, rather than a vision of life as a whole. Observations not interpretations. Nothing is thought through. No problem is solved. Our reading too, partakes of the same spirit. We skim through the market reports and the sporting page of the daily newspaper and miss the big things of the kingdom of God which can be seen recorded, had we time and vision to look and think. We are anxious about things and miss the kingdom of truth and righteousness. A world of truth and beauty is overlooked in our rush and hurry and we miss the hills whence cometh our strength. The art of meditation is well-nigh a lost art, for lack of time to practice it.

The awakened sense of the solidarity of the world has or should have revealed to us our partnership with the divine burdenbearer. We see our earth foundering in a welter of snarling greed and envy. Every day the demands upon us of unfulfilled moral and social obligations multiply, as the world is jammed together and is learning to live together—not without friction, rancor and tragedy. Time was when a man could be a good citizen without much fret and worry. All that was required of him was that he pay the debts, respect the law and do his daily work honestly and faithfully. But today it is much more difficult. New social duties and obligations are constantly being revealed.

Since then, we cannot escape the burdensome weight of our complex, anxious life, our real question is how to meet it, how to live bravely and finely in it, how to win from it what it has to give. How can we take our place in life and carry our load and not be made fretful and anxious by it? How can we live in a restful, anxious, troubled world in quietness and confidence, helping forward every day the cause of the kingdom of God, the cause of righteousness and truth and love? How can we win and keep a deep, tender, triumphant life of the spirit?

One thing is certainly true. So long as we can keep an inward calm and peace, it does not matter very much how many things throng and crowd upon us. Why? Any reason, that inner quiet and peace gives way and the din and hurry and clamor of the world invade our soul, we are sure to go to pieces and make an awful failure of life and become a class of mind and hard of heart. Hence, my friends, the imperative necessity of paying more attention to the inner life, both intellectual and spiritual.

Take first the life of the intellect. However hurried and noisy and cluttered life may be, we must have more fellowship with the world's great and noble minds; we must have a wide and quiet place of vision, a point of vantage from which to see life in the large and long perspective. If we are not to be confused and overwhelmed by it. Every day teaches me the necessity of communion with the master spirits of the race if life is to be kept healthy and sane and strong.

Surely I do not need to remind you students how much the great masters of literature have to give you, but to me their greatest gift is vision, without which the world within is an unlit chaos and the world without a confused bedlam. I shall never forget the debt I owe to my father when he set me the task for my summer reading, the summer I graduated from high school, Prescott's Conquest of Mexico and Peru, Carlyle's French Revolution, Victor Hugo's Les Misérables, and the poems of Robert Herrick.

Books of the day come and go leaving scarcely a trace behind, giving us only passing, flitting thoughts of things eternal; but the great books lift up on the wings of vision to the mountain tops. They see what other men only look at; they kindle the mind and warm the heart; they give us a background against which to interpret the pageant of affairs; they cast over the side of events the light of spiritual insight and moral values by which we may correct our estimate and renew our faith in the moral order of the universe.

By helping us to see life as a whole, they reveal the eternal in the midst of time and rescue us from the cynicism to which we are tempted. They give us the far look, teaching us to step out of the years against the "transience" of days and show us that we are not alone in our fealty to the ideal which else may become visionary and unreal.

The difficulty today is to make friends with these masters of song and story in the hurry and press of our busy days. But we must take time; we must have a method; we must choose some great teacher who has achieved in his own life the victory we most long to win—study him, live with him, put your mind and soul to school to his faith and genius.

Are you disposed to self-despising? Make friends with Emerson and his serene, radiant and benignant mind will be as a city of God set on a hill. The daring faith of Browning, his swift and fiery insight, make the living Christ real as the answer to all questions and the so-called of all hearts. How many God-furnished teachers we have and how gracious is their ministry of inspiration and enrichment. They can help us to the nobler mood, the clearer insight, the broader outlook needed to redeem us from the stress and strain and fret of the world and the sense of impotence and futility.

Still more imperative than the care of the intellectual life and communion with master minds is the necessity of deepening the life of the spirit which makes religion a power and God a real presence. What we need is fellowship and communion with the life that can interpret life, knowledge of the truth that sets us free, and of the way without which there is no going.

St. Paul found the sum of all truth, the source of all power, the secret of life in the "Mind of Christ," by which he meant not simply the marvelous intelligence of Jesus but the total result and achievement of his character and personality—the revelation of the mind of God in humanity. For him the test of all truth, the ideal of all judgment, the key to a puzzling world with its tragedy of frustrated hopes, was the mind of Christ. In that sublime faith he found not only peace of heart and mind but power to overcome the obstacles that beset his heroic life.

And my friends, for you too, the way is open to a like precious experience and a like triumphant faith. The world's religious teacher and master is saying to us in the midst of our restless and fretful life: "Learn of me, for I am gentle and lowly of heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls." True religious peace, true peace of mind and soul, such as Jesus promises is no gift but a lesson to be learned. A task to be achieved, a hard discipline. It appears plain enough that God never meant that character should be a gift but a reward. There is no royal road to anything, least of all to the divinest things in life.

And Jesus did not ask us to learn of Him because He was very learned and wise and profound, but because He was "gentle and lowly of spirit." Had he asked us to master some profound philosophy, in our intellectual conceit and pride we might have been prompted to accept. But He asks something far simpler; He asks us to trust and follow Him as we must do with any other teacher if we are to learn.

Ah, my friends, here is the first step to all that is worth while in life and unless we take it we cannot go very far.

What makes the way of Jesus different from all other ways, is that it is a way of simple personal friendship, not merely obedience to law. All law is here but all love is here also. Once we actually yield our spirits to the warmth and glow of his glorious friendship, then life begins to be worth while and the glory of the kingdom of truth and righteousness begins to flood our souls.

How then, can we today enter into the mind and fellowship of Christ? Why in precisely the same way that we do with any other teacher. By living with Him, thinking His thoughts after him, following in His way.

Surely, no matter how busy you may be there is some time each day to read the book which tells the story of His life here among men, where with open and sincere eyes we may search out the conditions of conscious fellowship with Him. Think of Him in the morning when the day is new and the mind unstained with dust. Recall Him at eventide, before the night falls. Do this with humility and single-heartedness, praying to be real as He is real, and the wonder will be wrought in you which has been wrought in innumerable lives, making them masters of life and time and death.

All wise men know that money does not bring happiness, that realized ambitions do not give content, and that to gain the world and lose the light of faith and the joy of hope, is indeed a bad bargain.

What we need above all else is to know the Lord of all good life, who alone can make life dearer, deeper, more serene, Him who has overcome the world and will make us all victors in His service.

New Rooming House.

The Howard Hendricks residence property at 305 Clinton Avenue, near the Senate House, has been greatly improved and modernized throughout by Kenneth Hendricks, son of the late owner, at a considerable expense. New foundations have been built for the house, hot and cold water, heat, toilets, baths and electric lighting installed and the entire interior woodwork repainted and walls in the dozen rooms repapered. The exterior will be repainted. The old dilapidated side platform and porch has been taken away and a wide porch built at the rear of the building from which a view for a wide expanse of the lowlands can be had. A Colonial front door has replaced the old entrance. The house has been leased by Mrs. H. Bailey, who will conduct a select furnished rooming house under the name "The Colonial."

MORE ABOUT GULLS

"I have another story to tell you children," said Professor Sea Gull, also known as Prof. Gull, to the Sea Gull children.

"It is a story that will make you proud, for it tells of the great work once accomplished by Sea Gulls and of the reward and honor shown to the Sea Gulls.

"It is quite a true, true story; but as it is your history lesson, too, I hope you will remember it. I think it is rather a good idea to combine one's history and story-time together if it is possible.

"And it is certainly possible in this case, for the story is really Sea Gull history, and every little Sea Gull should know the story.

"Are you all ready, children, to hear the story, or the history lesson—it can be called either as I have just explained—are you all ready, children?" And the Sea Gull children all answered, in their rather curious, fascinating voices:

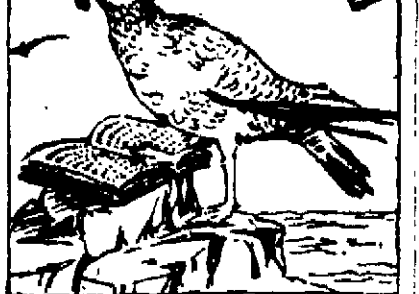

"We're all ready, Prof. Sea Gull."

"Some time ago there was a great plague of grasshoppers in a certain part of the country. The people did not know what they would do.

"The grasshoppers were utterly destroying their crops, so that they did not know whether they would have a famine or what would happen.

"It only grew worse and worse. They hoped desperately it would grow better and that, somehow, they could get rid of the grasshoppers.

"But nothing helped, nothing at all. Oh, they were desperate! All their crops were being fast destroyed and they were not able to do anything about it.

"It was dreadful, truly dreadful.

"Suddenly, suddenly a great change came.

"It hardly seemed real—it was so wonderful and came so suddenly and unexpectedly.

"From somewhere, no one knew just where, appeared Sea Gulls—hundreds and thousands of Sea Gulls.

"They came hurrying this way and that, as though they had heard the bad news and wanted to save every moment of time they could.

"No one knew how they had heard; no one knew why they had come so far to be of so much help.

"No one understood, but every one was grateful.

"The Sea Gulls did not waste a moment. They began eating the grasshoppers, eating, eating, and before long all the grasshoppers had disappeared!

"All the Sea Gulls were looking very fat and well, and had enjoyed themselves immensely; but they had been quick and they had come of their own free will and accord—no one knew from where, nor how, nor why."

"And, though they had had a good time, they had certainly performed a marvelous work.

"They had saved the crops."

"Oh, there was such rejoicing, such rejoicing when the people saw that, after all, their crops would not be destroyed when they had seen them doomed and thought there would be no help!

"So, what do you suppose the people did?"

"You'll never guess, Sea Gull, children, so I'll have to tell you. The people put up a great monument to Sea Gulls.

"And upon the monument are figures of Sea Gulls destroying grasshoppers.

"There is also a fine tablet on the monument and noble words of 'grateful remembrance' to the Sea Gulls are engraved upon it.

"I do not know of another such monument in the world.

"Isn't that a wonderful part of our history, children?"

The children all exclaimed and cheered with joy to think of the noble, brave deeds their ancestors had done.

"We must always be worthy of our fine ancestors," they cried. And Prof. Gull held his head high.

"I rejoice in that great deed and proud am I to be a Sea Gull when I think of what our grandfathers and great-grandfathers and great-grandmothers have accomplished!"

And every Sea Gull was thrilled with that day's history lesson, which was a true, true story of their own ancestors!

SOUR CREAM AND MILK DISHES

On the farm there is usually a supply of sour cream and the right use of this delicious food should be studied, for there are countless ways of using it in the preparation of other food.

As the acidity of milk differs it is hard to give the proportions of soda to use to equalize it.

However, one-half teaspoonful to one cupful of milk or cream is considered sufficient.

Quick Cream Cookies.—Take one cupful of sour cream, one cupful of sugar, one egg, two and one-half cupsful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of baking powder sifted with the flour. The soda may be stirred into the milk. Add salt and nutmeg for flavoring and drop by spoonfuls on a well-greased baking sheet. Sprinkle with sugar, add one-half a nutmeg and bake in a quick oven.

Sour Cream Pie.—Take one cupful of sour cream, two-thirds of a cupful of sweet milk, one-half cupful of chopped raisins, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, the yolks of two eggs and a little salt. Bake in one crust and use the whites for a meringue.

Graham Gems.—Beat one egg, add one cupful of sour milk and one cupful of graham flour, salt and soda, one-half teaspoonful each. When well mixed add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and bake in a quick oven in gem pans.

Salted Dressing.—Beat the yolks of two eggs until light, stir in gradually one-half cupful of thick sour cream, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar and the well-beaten whites of two eggs.

Sweet Potato Pie.—Take one cupful each of sour cream and sugar, one pint of mashed sweet potato, the yolks of four eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half a nutmeg and salt to taste. Bake in one crust and spread while hot with strained honey. A meringue may be placed over it if preferred; the latter will not be so sweet.

MAN'S GREAT DESIRE IS TO LIVE FOREVER

Outline of discourse by Pastor Glen G. Smith at Colonial Theatre Sunday in which he submitted much Bible evidence pointing to a literal fulfillment of this "desire of all nations."

"All true Christians accept the Bible as the inspired Word of God given to man for his instruction. It is an outline of God's plan written in such a manner that it can be understood only as the Lord is pleased to unfold it. This unfolding occurs by the happening of great events in the world. Prophecy means to foretell what is going to happen, and history is a record of what has happened; therefore when prophecy is fulfilled it can be understood."

"Man's great desire is that he might live forever in happiness. Jesus said 'This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.' (John 17:3) Every man, then, who really wants to live, and who believes the Bible, would certainly be interested in the revealed plan of God that leads to life everlasting. Briefly stated, it is this:—

"Man was formed perfect and in the image and likeness of Jehovah, endowed with reasoning faculties and the senses, and given dominion over the earth, with the right to enjoy life and the blessings incident thereto eternally. One condition was attached, however, that he must be obedient to God. Eve was deceived, and violated the law, and then Adam deliberately joined her in the transgression."

"The result was that man was sentenced to death. This judgment is set forth in Genesis 3:17-19. In substance it provides that man must return to the dust from which he came. God enforced this judgment by taking man away from the perfect world that was in Eden and by causing him to earn his bread by tilling the soil outside of Eden, which produced imperfect food; and the eating of this food poisoned man's system, and he gradually died. Under this condition all of his children were brought forth; hence all were born in sin and shapen in iniquity. (Psalm 51:5; Romans 5:12.)

"It follows, then, that if man is ever to have life he must be released from the judgment of condemnation and death and be provided with the means of sustaining life. The Bible discloses that this provision was long ago made. God promised to redeem man from death. (Hosea 13:14)

Amongst the human race no man could redeem his brother. (Psalm 49:7.) Therefore in the fullness of time Jehovah sent forth into the earth his beloved Son, who was born of a woman but not begotten by a man, horn holy, harmless and separate from sinners. (Hebrews 7:26) As to why Jesus came to earth and lived here for thirty-three and one-half years and then was crucified, the Scriptures answer: He came to give his life a ransom. (Matthew 20:28) that the people might have life. (John 10:10) As the perfect man Adam had been sentenced to death, the perfect man Jesus voluntarily permitting his life to be taken from him, provided a corresponding price or ransom, and the acceptance of this sacrifice by Jehovah would result in the legal release of Adam and his offspring from the judgment above mentioned.

"The death and resurrection of Jesus occurred more than eighteen hundred years ago. Why, then, has not his death resulted in bringing life to the human race? The answer is, that the Scriptures set forth that it is God's purpose to take out from amongst the nations a people for his name (Acts 15:14), and after this he will set up his kingdom. Before Jesus ascended on high he informed his followers that he would 'return and receive them to himself; and from Pentecost until his kingdom he has been gathering out from the world those willing to make a voluntary sacrifice with him and be his faithful followers unto 'death.' These, says the Apostle, constitute with Jesus the seed of promise through which the blessings should come.—Galatians 3:16, 27, 29.

"Because of the blessings that were expected to come to the race, the great event to which all Bible students have looked forward, both Jews and gentiles, has been the end of the old order and the coming of the Messianic kingdom. Jews have not believed Jesus to be the Messiah while Christians have. ## WHY PEOPLE "BREAK DOWN"

Burden as a General Thing Was Not Too Heavy, but the Load Was Put on Wrong Place.

People are breaking down in health all the time. And as the business man, the housewife and the student fall by the roadside the public dolefully exclaims: "The load was too heavy." As a matter of fact people break down not because the load they are carrying is too great, for in nine cases out of ten they could carry more than they are asked to, but because they don't know how to get the load on. Dr. Joel E. Goldthwait writes in the Designer. They put the pack on in the wrong place and then the human machine is used in such a way that a great deal of the energy is required to overcome what would mechanically be called friction. When the nation's young men and women have been taught to use their bodies correctly and are standing up straight many of the problems facing the country today will have been solved. There will be fewer instances of break-down in the mill and the office and the home. People will carry their loads easily. The development of their bodies will make it possible for them to know the fullest joy that life can give.

MOTOR VEHICLE
LAW CHANGES

Effective Next Saturday—Headlight Candles Power Reduced—Change to License Year—Indemnity Bonds.

Albany, June 25.—Several important changes in the state motor vehicle law go into effect next Saturday, July 1. The State Tax Commission today advised all motor vehicle owners and drivers to consider carefully the various changes and make certain that they are complying with all that affect them. There are six amendments which become effective Saturday. They follow:

Headlight Regulation. The amendment which probably affects the greatest number is that providing for strict regulation of headlight lenses by the Tax Commission, inasmuch as it has a bearing, positively or negatively, upon every car driven in New York. The chief provision of this amendment is that no head lamp shall be used upon any motor vehicle operated on the public highways of the state unless the lamp is equipped with a lens or other anti-glare device approved by the Tax Commission. Every such device must be applied and adjusted in accordance with the requirements of the certificate approving it.

Devices already approved under the old permissive statute by the secretary of state or the Tax Commission may be used during the life of the old certificate, but the new law provides that the Tax Commission may revoke any existing certificate of approval, after reasonable notice to the manufacturer and opportunity for hearing. Attention must be paid to the reflecting surface of head lamps, which must be of polished silver or glass surface, free from "dents, rust and other imperfections." These regulations apply to electrically lighted lamps. Acetylene or gas head lamps may use plane glass lenses, subject to the approval of the commission as to burners, reflectors and other equipment. Twenty-one candlepower is made the maximum for electric lamps instead of twenty-four.

Change in License Year. Two other amendments which will be wide in their effect change the beginning of the license year for chauffeurs throughout the state and operators in New York City from February 1 to July 1. All certificates for these two classes now in effect will expire at midnight Friday, and no chauffeur or New York City operator may drive his car legally Saturday unless he has a new certificate. Police officials have been notified to this effect, and the Tax Commission states that no extension will be granted as ample opportunity has been given all to comply with the regulations.

As a matter of fact these amendments were passed by the 1921 legislature, but they do not come into effect until July 1, 1922. Licenses issued after that date, therefore, were made to expire July 1, 1922. Licenses issued before that date, however, were under the old regulations and expired last February 1, when it was necessary to issue a special short term license which expires Friday midnight. The Tax Commission has warned motorists affected that the rate of renewal for these licenses has been very slow and advises immediate attention to the matter in order to avoid a last minute rush.

Indemnity Bonds for Omnibuses. Another change effective Saturday which is creating wide attention is that requiring indemnity bonds or insurance policies for omnibuses in first class cities. Operators of this class of vehicles in first class cities must file with the Tax Commission for each vehicle so operated a personal bond with at least two sureties approved by the commission, or a corporation surety bond or policy of insurance, in the sum of $2,500, to cover any judgment recovered for death or injury to persons or property caused in the operation or defective construction of such vehicle. Continuing liability must be a provision of the bond or policy.

Increase in Motorcycle Fees. Beginning Saturday, the fee for registration of motorcycles is increased from $2.50 to $5.

Change in Cost of Vehicle's Certificate. Up to the present time the charge for registering each vehicle's certificate, or certificate of transfer of ownership of a motor vehicle, has been one dollar. The Tax Commission found this was not sufficient to cover the actual cost of the operation to the state, and therefore, beginning Saturday, the cost will be increased to two dollars.

DESCENDANT OF STUYVESANT
VISITS HISTORIC KINGSTON

The Hon. Hamilton Fish and Mrs. Fish drove up from Garrison's Friday and spent several hours here visiting the historic places of Kingston. Mr. Fish who is a lineal descendant of Peter Stuyvesant the great Dutch governor general of New York, in talking with Judge Clearwater about Kingston said that his doughty ancestor would have been delighted with the luncheon served at The Stuyvesant when he compared it with the luncheon served at The Esopus Indians on the occasion of his coming here to patch up a truce between the Indians and the Dutch settlers. Both Mr. Fish and his wife were delighted with Kingston, particularly with the splendid trees which line the residential streets of the city.

On Gullian Property at Ulster Park.

Esopus, June 26.—On the beautiful, spacious lawn of Reuben Gullian, Mt. Armenia, Ulster Park, the most enjoyable and long to be remembered picnic was held by the teachers and pupils of Union Center and Esopus, No. 10.

Various games and contests were held by the pupils of both schools. Among the pupils who received prizes were Ruth Proper, Agnes Kennedy, Marion Coutant, Letitia Isaia, William Bendickson, George Villioim, Alan Coutant, John Bjorklund, T. Towell and L. Gullian. ## MADE BUSINESS OF MURDER

William Burke, Infamous Irishman, Also Instrumental in Adding Significant Verb to Language.

Burke and Hare were two notorious body-snatchers, or resurrectionists, who carried on their infamous trade in Edinburgh. William Burke was born in Ireland in 1792, and went to Scotland as a laborer about 1817. In 1827 he was living in a cheap lodging house kept by another Irish laborer named William Hare. About the 10 of 1827 one of Hare's lodgers, an army pensioner, died, and Burke and Hare sold the body to Dr. Robert Knox, an Edinburgh anatomist. Hare thereupon suggested body-snatching as a business and Burke agreed. The two men then started in to entice poor travelers to Hare's or some other cheap lodging house. The victims were piled with liquor and then suffocated under mattresses, without marks of violence. Doctor Knox took the bodies and paid up to £14 ($600) for them. At least 15 people had been murdered in this way before Burke and Hare were arrested. Hare turned king's evidence, and Burke was found guilty and hanged in Edinburgh on January 28, 1828. Hare found Scotland too hot for him and went to England, where he is believed to have died under an assumed name. The verb "to burke," meaning to suffocate, to strangle, to suppress, or to put out of the way secretly, had its origin in Burke's method of doing away with his victims.

MONEY TO BURN

Two Sides of Turnover

The alert business man dealing with present day conditions knows that the big word today is "Turnover." Whether he be a merchant, manufacturer, jobber, or banker, he sees that one thing with a clear vision unbiased by the limits of his own business. It is in the air, and on the tip of every tongue.

And yet many of them—entirely too many—are thinking on only one side of Turnover. They think of it as meaning rapid selling—putting money in and getting it out quickly and at a profit. They realize that they must put greatly increased efforts back of all their plans for selling and distribution.

The other half of Turnover is the consumer. All selling plans and efforts fail if the consumer doesn't want to buy. His desire for the product must be created. He must meet the seller half way. He must be in a mood to buy before the salesman meets him across the counter.

That is the function of Advertising—to create consumer demand and consumer preference. With this demand as a fact all selling plans have a chance to succeed. Without it they fail. The only chance for salesmanship to succeed without an existing demand is for salesmanship to assume the task that belongs to advertising—the task of creating demand.

If the present efforts that are being put into selling were amply supported by a corresponding effort to create consumer demand through Advertising, the business conditions of this country would be rapidly changed into an era of great prosperity—in spite of Old World conditions and everything else.

The proof of this in the fact that right now, under these very conditions, the manufacturers who are putting proper emphasis on creating a demand for their product, as well as selling it, are doing a big business and are actually getting the high turnover that others are trying so strenuously to get through intensive selling.

The Hated Profiteer.

"Everybody hates a profiteer," said Secretary Hoover at a Washington banquet, "and everybody knows where the profiteer will go to when he dies." "A millionaire profiteer was carried off by indigestion, and his employees attended the funeral in a body. By the terms of the will the profiteer was buried in a strange manner. He wore his newest frock coat, his largest diamond ring and his costliest platinum watch. Furthermore his best cane was buried with him, and in his mouth was his newest set of teeth, the set with the gold plates." "I understand all this business," said one of the dead profiteer's employees. "It's for show. But I can't understand about the false teeth. What's the sense of it?" "The sense of it," said another employee, "is easy to see. How would the boss feel when he got to the weepin' and wallin' and gnashin' shop if he hadn't a fine set of teeth?"

Haughty Stare Coward Leopard.

A planter in Tanganyika Territory, South Africa, walking along a footpath, fell into a big game pit in which a leopard had been trapped. Notwithstanding the fact that the leopard was the beast nor the man could get out again, so the planter was "up against it," but remembering what he had heard of the power of the human eye, he fixed the leopard with a haughty stare.

"By this means and by making strange noises, I kept the animal at bay until a friend appeared and shot it," he said. Others who heard of the affair, and who knew the planter very well, point out that he is a lean and slender man, not likely to attract a leopard unless the latter was indeed hungry to a desperate point.

To Last 20,000 Years.

The builders of a stadium for a California university must have had possible visitors in an unknown future civilization in mind as they worked, for they have built it to last twenty thousand years. Built of gravel, sand, and water-worn stones—materials such as a glacier carries and deposits—the stadium will outlive the world's greatest amphitheatres, according to the estimates of engineers in charge. Terminal moraines, or glacial deposits, they point out, have resisted the action of the elements for many thousand years without materially altering their shape.

Interest. After July 10 they will be at home at 1480 State street, Schenectady, where a furnished home awaits the bridal couple.

Excursion Had $800 Insurance Against Rain.

The management of the excursion from Peekskill accompanying the Knights of Columbus baseball team to this city Sunday told a Freeman reporter of his good fortune in taking out an insurance policy against rain. The premium amounted to about $82, the policy $800. The good luck was due to a heavy rainfall in Peekskill Sunday morning, which started about 6 o'clock and lasted for about half an hour. The contract read that if it rained one tenth of an inch between 5 o'clock in the morning and 10 o'clock at night, they would receive the insurance. All told it was a very prosperous day for the Peekskill Knights, as a good amount was cleared from the receipts of the excursion and the additional insurance made it a very large sum.

Excursion Had $800 Insurance Against Rain.

The management of the excursion from Peekskill accompanying the Knights of Columbus baseball team to this city Sunday told a Freeman reporter of his good fortune in taking out an insurance policy against rain. The premium amounted to about $82, the policy $800. The good luck was due to a heavy rainfall in Peekskill Sunday morning, which started about 6 o'clock and lasted for about half an hour. The contract read that if it rained one tenth of an inch between 5 o'clock in the morning and 10 o'clock at night, they would receive the insurance. All told it was a very prosperous day for the Peekskill Knights, as a good amount was cleared from the receipts of the excursion and the additional insurance made it a very large sum.

In Saturday's Contest—Schrickmen Play Errorless Ball and Clout Nine Hits—Lowers Make Nine Errors and Get Two Hits.

The Brewster club came to Kingston Saturday scheduled to play the Colonials, but for the greater part of the time they were playing themselves as well. As a result, the Colonials had an easy time returning the visitors to the dugout.

For five innings it looked as if Bud Culliton would enter the ranks of the no-hit, no-run artists. The men from Dutchess county were unable to send a man to first base in the first five frames, but in the sixth Bruce broke the spell by sending a three base hit to left center. Culliton took Schwab's place in left at the beginning of the seventh and was relieved in the box by Freddie Stout.

Nine errors by the visitors had much to do with the run-making of the Colonials, practically all the errors resulting on easy chances. Leddy, the big underhand flinger of the Brewster club, was found for nine hits by Captain Schrick's men, and in almost every instance the hits were mixed with errors on the part of the visiting players. The Colonials, on the other hand, accepted every chance in the field with a mislay.

Deegan gave the Kingston team its first run in the second inning. Matty sent one down the third base line too hot for Baker to handle and reached first, and went to second on Artie Rice's sacrifice. Deegan went out short to first, Deegan taking third on the play. Schwab followed with a walk, and when Keating fumbled Moore's easy grounder Deegan reached home.

It was Deegan again in the fourth who gave the Colonials their second run. Matty led off with a single to left, and Rice again came along with a sacrifice, putting Deegan on second. Newark's throw to third to catch Deegan stealing was way over Baker's head, and Matty came all the way in.

One hit coupled with three errors gave the Kingston team three runs in the fifth. Culliton was safe when Schantz failed to gather in his grounder, and Fitzgerald followed with a bunt down the first base line. Both men were safe when Schantz, after again dropping the throw to get Fitz, Robins sent a fly to Hammell in center, whose throw in home led off Culliton got by Newark and Bud scored. Fitzgerald taking third, Coyle shot a single to left and Leo touched the rubber.

The Colonials' last tally came in the seventh. Fitzgerald got on when Leddy tumbled his easy tap to the box, and Robins sacrificed him along a base. Coyle sent Fitz home with a two base drive to left.

The Brewster team's only score came in the sixth. Bruce got the first hit made off Culliton when he tripped to center with none down. Newark rolled a bunt down the base line and Bruce reached home before Coyle could field the ball.

Freddie Stout took Culliton's place in the box in the seventh and allowed but one hit, a two base drive to left by Baker, first man up for Brewster in the seventh. Baker reached third on an infield play but was out when he attempted to steal home. Baker injured himself in the slide home and moved to the right field in the next inning, several changes then being made necessary in the visitor's line-up.

STIFF STRUGGLE GOES TO COLONIALS

Sunday's Game a Battle Between Peckskill's Southpaws and Local Right-handers—Coyle's Hit in Twelfth Drives in Winning Run.

For eleven innings at the Fair grounds Sunday afternoon "Cracky" Holden and his Peckskill Knights of Columbus team fought the Colonials to a standstill. Then came the twelfth, "Cracky" feeling that the strain of the extra innings was too much for him, substituted Frye in the box and—crack went the ball game. Three to two was the Colonials' margin of victory, and it was as hard fought a victory, as the Colonials have ever earned.

It was a desperate fight the Schrickmen asked, for they found the famous "Cracky" at his best. Coupled with this they had to overcome a two run lead gained by the Kaysees in the first, when a wild pitch by McAuliffe sent two runners over the plate. After the first Mac steadied and pitched a beautiful ball until the eleventh, when Culliton went in in his stead. McAuliffe allowed only two hits from the first until the eleventh, one coming in the fourth and the other in the ninth.

The Peckskill club surely strained every muscle to put over a win. Five hundred rabid rooters from the down-river city accompanied the team to Kingston, and how they did root when they got the chance. Until two men were out in the ninth it looked as if the fans from down the state would take the game back with them, but a fine exhibition of base running by Matty Deegan tied it up for the Kingston team when it looked as if the game was lost.

Deegan, first up in the last regulation frame, sent a hot drive to short and pulled up at first. Artie Rice came to the front with a bunt down the first base line and Matty made second while Rice was being thrown out. Holden then cracked Glaser in the ribs with the ball and Kingston runners were on first and second with one down and one needed to tie. Coyle sent a hot ground ball to the pitcher, who stepped on second, forcing Glaser and then sent the ball to first trying for a double play. In the meanwhile Deegan was tearing for home and when the throw to first to catch Schwab was too late Matty reached home with the run needed to tie it up.

After tying it up in the ninth the Colonials kept on even terms with the Knights until the twelfth, when they put over the winning run. Holden went out to right field and sent Frye to the box. It was a fatal move on the part of the Peckskill pilot. Frye cracked Jack Robbins on the arm with the ball after Fitzgerald had been retired, and Kid Moore took Jack's place on the basepaths while the latter was being given medical treatment. Up came Bobby Coyle. Bobby caught one on the nose and sent it on a line past third base to left field. Moore, tearing around the bases at a 10 second clip, came home with the run that won the ball game.

The visitors got away to a two run lead in the first inning. Hoffman cracked the first ball pitched to right field for two bases and went to third on Holden's sacrifice. Ferris hit to Glaser, who threw home to catch Hoffman. But Hoffman stopped and went back to third and made it in safety. Ferris landing on first, Jake Drusken bit on a hook ball for the third strike making the second out of the inning. With Gilman up Hoffman started for home, and when McAuliffe let loose a wild pitch both Hoffman and Ferris made the rounds. Those two runs in the first inning gave the Peckskill team a lead that looked like the ball game. Not until the fifth did the Colonials have a chance to break past the defense set up by the visitors. Bill Schwab was the boy who started things going in this frame. With Glaser out of the way Bill hit a single over second and went down a base when W. Riley let the ball get past him. Moore couldn't fathom "Cracky's" delivery and went down on strikes, but McAuliffe came through with the necessary hit and sent Schwab over with the first Kingston run.

Holden showed some real stuff in the seventh inning. Rice was walked as a starter and when Glaser attempted to sacrifice he lifted a little pop fly that fell in Holden's glove. "Cracky" then threw over to first and nipped Rice off the bag, but Umpire Seixas declared a balk and sent Rice down to second. "Cracky" was real mad and showed it. He whipped the ball over so fast for Schwab and Moore that neither one of them could see it and both went out on strikes. After the first the visitors could do nothing with McAuliffe and found the opportunities to score few and far between. J. Riley singled in the fourth after two were down, but was left when Brother Bill fled out to Schwab. Gilman led off the ninth with a single, but second base was his limit.

The Colonials came within an inch of putting the ball game away in the tenth. After McAuliffe and Fitzgerald had gone out Robins shot a single past short, and Coyle followed with another in the same direction. With two men on Holden and Ferris held a conference and decided to walk Deegan, loading the bases. Rice hit one so close to the line in right field that the fans began to get up and leave, but it was declared a foul. Then Artie hit to Holden for the third out.

Culliton entered the box for the Colonials in the eleventh. With two down in this frame John Drusken scratched a single through short, but was out when he tried to steal. The Knights were unable to do anything with Bud's slants in the twelfth, and then came the break that gave Kingston the game.

Following the game the excursionists, their ball team and the Colonial team were entertained at the Knights of Columbus Home.
